the Protocol is aimed to protect human health and well being by better water management, including the protection of water ecosystems, and by preventing, controlling and reducing water-related diseases. The Protocol is the first international agreement of its kind adopted specifically to attain an adequate supply of safe drinking water and adequate sanitation for everyone, and effectively protect water used as a source of drinking water.

The main next water event in November - Seventh session of the Meeting of the Parties to the Water Convention, 17-19 November 2015, Budapest, Hungary

The meeting will be held back to back with the workshop on Promoting transboundary water cooperation in the Middle East and Northern Africa (MENA) region on the basis of the Water Convention, to be held on 16 November 2015.

Following the entry into force in 2013 of the amendment allowing accession by all United Nations Member States to the Convention, this session of the Meeting of the Parties will mark the Convention's transition into a global multilateral legal and intergovernmental framework for transboundary water cooperation. More than 80 countries, Parties and non-Parties to the Convention, are expected to be represented in Budapest to review progress achieved in the Convention's implementation and discuss how the Convention can best support transboundary water cooperation worldwide. Overall, the session will gather about 400 participants, representatives of countries, international organizations, NGOs and academia.
